Atkinson's Saturday Evening Post

A FAMILY NEWSPAPER, DEVOTED TO LITERATURE, MORALITY, SCIENCE, NEWS, AGRICULTURE AND AMUSEMENT.

Bulletin, No. 331. PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 8, 1834. Vol. XIII.—Whole No. 638.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY,
By Samuel Coate Atkinson,
No. 30 CARTER'S ALLEY,
Third door below Third street, near the Girard Bank

TERMS—$2 50, if paid during the year.
$3 00, if paid within six months.
$3 50, if not paid during the year.
$4 00, for out of town subscribers.

Papers discontinued only at the option of the publisher while arrearages are due.

 Small notes of Solvent Banks, excepting Banks of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Missouri and Louisiana, received in any terms on subscriptions, &c. by mail.

TO A LADY—BY F. G. HALLECK.

The world is bright before thee;
The sunniest hours are thine;
Its calm blue sky is o'er thee;
Thy bosom virtue's shrine!
And thine the softness given
To nature's nursing best,
Pure, warm, and wild, from heaven
It burst on Eden's bower.

There is a song; I sorrow—
The death-dirge of the gay—
That tells ere dawn of morrow,
Those charms our souls away.
That sun's bright beam be shaded
That air be blue no more,
The summer bower be leaded,
And youth's warm promise o'er.

Believe it not—then gh lonely
The young lover may mourn;
Though beauty's dark can only
Flash from eyes of scorn;
Though time thy bloom is stealing,
Thy heart be bleeding,
The wild flower is oath of feeling—
The sunbeam of the heart.

THE PARTING AND RETURN.

BY JOHN MALCOLM.

One fatal remembrance, one sorrow that throws
Its black shade alike o'er our joys and woes,
To which we turn wearied from hope after hope,
For which joy hath no blame and affliction no sting.
MOORE.

Passing one evening along the piazzas of Covent-Garden theatre, I entered the house, and with some difficulty procured a seat in the upper tier of boxes. The curtain was drawn up, and the play, was more than usually crowded.

Whether the fault was in the actors itself or in the acting I cannot say, but, certain it is, I felt little or no interest in the performance, and began—as is usual under such circumstances—to look around and to seek amusement in a survey of the company.

While I was busily engaged in scanning the faces around me, I observed that my own was diligently perused by a gentleman dressed in black, who was sitting close beside me. I looked at him in my turn, but felt a dim and confused remembrance of having seen him before.

"If I am not much mistaken," said the stranger, "your name is Morris."

"Your acquaintance with my name," replied I, "confirms the conjecture that I had begun to form; that you are unknown to me although at this moment I cannot recollect it, or tell when and where I have seen you."

"Is it possible," returned he, "that a few years passed in India can have wrought such a change, that you cannot recognise your old friend Morris?"

Morris, indeed, it was; and after the first burst of pleasure and surprise, at this unexpected meeting, was over, we left the theatre, and adjourned to a tavern in the neighbourhood, where we partook of a light repast. As soon as the supper equipage was removed, and we were left to ourselves, "I congratulate you," said I, "upon your return to your native country, and almost envy you the feelings of delight which you must have no doubt more than compensate for the pain of absence and privation—indeed, the train of a few years absence and separation from all we loved, since they enable us to appreciate and enjoy the comforts and delights of home during the rest of our lives."

"You are mistaken," replied Morris; "the enviable feelings to which you suppose I exist, are not but in your imagination, as they once did by anticipation in mine. I left my native land, and sojourned in a distant land, give way to his longings to revisit the scenes of his childhood and to trace the well known paths which led through the mountains and the sea bottom him and his place of birth. Mirrored in the fond imagining of youth, the light of happier days, lies that fairy land of memory, but to revisit its scenes would be to dash the picture with shade, and to strike out from it the fair familiar faces that gladden our dreams, or banish the sunny hopes of the future—for him therefore enjoy the beauteous vision as it exists in memory, but not seek to view the reality with a faded eye and a disenchained heart."

"I am well aware that all our enjoyments come short of our anticipations, yet I fear there must have been some untoward circumstance in your case which has rendered your disappointment with the scenes which should naturally give rise to the sweetest emotions."

"That is too true," said Morris with a sigh,—"there is in my case a circumstance of sorrow that will ever cloud the present day and the fairest scene; and though perhaps it is wrong in me to trouble you with a record of my errors and sufferings, yet, by communicating them, I lighten the burden of our woes, I know you will forgive me, for I feel nearly compelled."

"I had nearly completed the course of education which is generally considered sufficient for young men destined to be sent forth to travel abroad, when, through the interest of an uncle who had been long resident in India, I was appointed to a cadet ship in the Company's service.

"I left the scene of my studies in order to pay a farewell visit to my relations in the North Highlands of Scotland, and for that purpose took my seat in the coach, in a dark night and rainy, at a turn of the road, within a few miles of my birth place, when I felt it, and the sound of trees the hickory proceeded on foot towards my native glen.

"It was Sabbath morning, and as I advanced upon my journey I began to see the dwellers of the hills assembling from their lonely cots at the call of the bells. Before the commencement of divine service, I also had reached it, and entered with my humble friends and companions of my early youth.

"In a few minutes a middle aged gentleman walked in, accompanied by his wife and daughter, and seated themselves in a pew almost opposite to that occupied by me. A glance at the size and bustle of curiosity which their entrance excited among the congregation, I guessed that they were persons of more than usual note; and by

[illegible] name, the heart of affection. It is [illegible] that the [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ATKINSON'S SATURDAY EVENING POST.

PHILADELPHIA:

Saturday, March 8, 1834.

The Printing and Publication Office of this paper is now located in Library Street, No. 36 Carpenter, the door below 3d st. between Chesnut and Walnut.

☞Subscribers to this paper are cautioned against paying any money to Washington Hammersley, late agent at Youngstown, as he is not authorized to receive monies due to this office. He is therefore requested to pay over the amount he has in his hands.

SALEM BANKING COMPANY.

This institution yet stands with closed doors. There being still about 200 shares of the stock unsold, it is uncertain whether it will go on or not. It is the opinion of a disinterested person, that it will recommence operations, as a large proportion of the property of many in the vicinity is invested in its notes, whose interest will induce them to reinstate it in that which event its stock will be better than heretofore.

The friends of Gen. Jackson, opposed to the present bank of the United States, held a meeting in the State House yard, on the afternoon of Tuesday last. Geo. M. Dallas, Esq. Attorney General for the Mayor's Court, presided, assisted by a large number of Vice Presidents. The number assembled, including spectators, is estimated at several thousands. Addresses against the bank and in favor of the course of the President in that institution, were made by Messrs. G. M. Dallas, John Thompson, Chas. J. Ingersoll, and Richard Rush, and resolutions, to coincide with the sentiments of the meeting. Of the resolutions approves of a national convention, for the purpose of nominating a successor to the present incumbent of the executive chair.

Mr. Avery's statement of facts relative to the circumstances by which he became involved in the late prosecution, that has appeared in the city, in pamphlet form. Appended is a vindication of the result of the trial. The pamphlet is well calculated, we think, to satisfy the public mind in regard to Mr. Avery's innocence. It may be obtained of Mr. J. Hamstead, No. 39½ north Fourth street.

Concert of Sacred Music.

The Philadelphia Sacred Music Society, gave their second Concert for the season, at the Adelphi, on Saturday evening. It was attended by a full, fashionable and intelligent audience, who were highly gratified, we have no doubt, with the excellence of the music selected for the entertainment, and the superior style in which it was performed. The Last Judgment, the Pilgrims of the Rhine, and the Wedding Pilgrima, by Kozeluch, was performed by a young lady with much skill and taste, as was also the Berceuse, the composition of Mozart, adapted to sacred words, and the solo, by Handel, Sweet bird that sing'st, with flute accompaniment. The opening chorus, Hallelujah to the Father, was grand and reflect style, though it is possible the smallness of the room impaired its effect. The Landing of Columbus, by Mozart, the Multitude of Angels, by Haydn, and the concluding chorus Hallelujah to the Father, by Beethoven, were all performed with a spirit and confidence that proved conclusively, the talent of the several performers. The recitative and trio, taken from the oratorio of the Intercession, were given by the vocal leader, with the skill and precision of a finished master, and reflect upon him the highest credit, for the high possession of vocal powers of no ordinary character. The instrumental performances were not less excellent, and equally as well executed, and on the whole, the entertainment was, in every respect, creditable to this young, spirited and flourishing society, and its experienced and attentive leaders.

We understand that the second part of Haydn's Grand Oratorio of the Seasons, containing the portion of Summer, will, with all the accompanying and descriptive music, be immediately placed in active rehearsal, by the Society, and will be brought out in a few weeks, as a portion of the entertainments for the third concert of the season. When it is remembered that this society is the only musical association in America that has agreed to attend this city at this difficult though beautiful Oratorio, it is no small praise to say, that the first part was placed under rehearsal and publicly performed in a period of four or five weeks. Older associations have spent a longer time in preparation, and then abandoned the attempt in despair.

How it Works.

The Public Ledger of The Columbia Spy of Saturday last states, that orders have been received to stop all work on the second track of the Railway between Columbia and Philadelphia. The failure of the commonwealth to make a loan on the faith of the unpromising situation of the money market, have produced this result, but it was not altogether unexpected. Sometime ago it was predicted that the state would be obliged to suspend her grand system of internal improvements, unless the authorities at Washington saw fit to retrace their steps in relation to the deposits, and this act is the result, verified.

Low to the State.—From the Harrisburg Telegraph we learn that the one hundred thousand dollars loss of premium is not the only loss to the state, created by the conduct of the administration in the Burden loan. The sum will exceed that amount by a great deal, which are failing to decay for the want of money to finish the work commenced. The contractors have been obliged to suspend operations for the present, for what is due, have had to take certificates, which they sell at 37½ per cent. discount, and in some instances at the rate of three per cent. a week to raise money to pay off their hands.

The Money Market.—Men of business—says the New York Courier—have seldom seen a darker day than last Saturday. The scarcity of money was excessive, and the best paper if discounted at all could only be converted into cash at a ruinous rate of discount. A heavy house suspended payment. The "fancy stocks," to which we alluded on Saturday morning, again declined, thus showing the folly of drawing any conclusions from a temporary rise in their value.

Education in Louisiana.

From a report made to the Secretary of State of Louisiana, it appears that returns have been received from 21 parishes, in which the number of children educated at the public expense, is 1195. The whole number in the state that educated during the year, is estimated at 1500. The whole number of children between the ages of five and fifteen years, is said to be 18,000—a large proportion of whom are without the means of education. The sum drawn from the Treasury, and expended in the support of the public schools, from January 1st to December 7, 1833, amounts to $30,449 77.

A young man, about 19 years of age named Francis Henry Shields, late of this city, where he was employed in a printing establishment, is advertised in the Cincinnati papers as having left his parents without their knowledge. Information respecting him is desired to be communicated to Messrs. Dubson and Stoddart, 167 Broadway, New York, or to William Nixon, Cincinnati.

Burning of the Steam Boat William Penn.

LOSS OF LIFE.

We are called upon to record this week one of the most serious disasters that has ever occurred on the Delaware river—that of the destruction, by fire, of the Steam Boat William Penn, Capt. Coffin, of the Trail, Road Line to Baltimore, and the loss of several of the passengers, which took place on the afternoon of Tuesday last. The particulars we glean from the daily newspapers, and from conversations with several who were eye-witnesses of the distressing scene. The boat was on her way to the city from Newcastle, and had nearly reached the Point House, about three miles below this city, when the fire was discovered to be on fire, near the wheel house, on the windward side of the boat. The most strenuous exertions were immediately made by the captain, crew, and passengers to extinguish the flames, but the confusion of so large a number—about one hundred and fifty—rendered it impossible to form a line by which to pass the buckets from one to the other, and the wheel-house and the adjoining offices were in a few minutes enveloped in one sheet of flame. The fire must have originated in the boiler, from the circumstance that if it had been discovered in season, a few minutes more or it never could have obtained such fatal headway. As soon as it was thought impossible to save the boat, the passengers calling out some to run her ashore, which was accordingly done by the captain, and passengers to extinguish the flames, but the confusion of so large a number—about one hundred and fifty—rendered it impossible to form a line by which to pass the buckets from one to the other, and the wheel-house and the adjoining offices were in a few minutes enveloped in one sheet of flame. The fire must have originated in the boiler, from the circumstance that if it had been discovered in season, a few minutes more or it never could have obtained such fatal headway. As soon as it was thought impossible to save the boat, the passengers calling out some to run her ashore, which was accordingly done by the captain, and passengers, some jumped, and others were thrown or four feet deep; a rope was immediately thrown to them, with which they held the boat, until the crowd letting themselves down by it, compelled them to let go, and the boat drifted off into deep water, occasioning a delay which probably cost the lives of some. In a few minutes, however, the rope was manned by a dozen who had jumped out, and the boat drawn up again, when it was finally abandoned.

At this time the small boat was lowered into the water and filled with females and children, who were conveyed in safety to the shore. A lady, however, in the hurry with the Rev. John Mitchell Mason, of Lewistown, Del. in her fright jumped into the river, and was drowned. She was followed into the water by the Reverend gentleman, who also met a watery grave. Mr. Mason, a son of Dr. Mason of this city, also perished, and a gentleman named Walter W. Berkeley, of Hartford, Conn. died on the following morning, from exposure to the cold, having remained in the water a considerable length of time. The name of the lady who was drowned is not known. Her body was brought to this city, on the evening of the sad occurrence, by the Reverend Mr. Mason.

As soon as the fire was discovered, a number of small boats put off from the shore to assist the sufferers—also, the South street steamboat, one of the Market line, and the Kensington steamboat, from next street wharf. The passengers, for the most part, were brought up in these vessels. Thousands of our citizens, who had witnessed from the moment the fire was discovered, until long after nightfall. Great anxiety was felt by those who expected friends and relatives, and hundred of persons rushed to catch a glance at the boat as she passed. The fearful loss on one deer to them had passed into the valley of death.

The boat continued burning for several hours, and presented a beautiful but awful spectacle. About half past six o'clock she floated from the shore, and was seen drifting, burning, as far as the lights opposite the city, where she again went ashore, and was finally burnt down to the water's edge. What was the loss sustained will be about $70,000.

The Rev. Robert Murdock, 101 Loudon street, who was one of the passengers, succeeded in rescuing a little girl named Sarah Jane Duff, who says her father, Alexander Duff, of Baltimore, is, he will no doubt hasten to recover his child.

The solo, The Wanderer, sung William Henry Pemberton Hodson, was also rescued: he says his father's name is Hugh Hodson, and that he resides in the boy is with the Rev. Mr. Clay, pastor of the Seventh Church, who resides near the church.

Mrs. Rodgers, wife of Mr. Rodgers—a female was also severely injured—the mail from Baltimore is mutilated, the first account accompanied with loss of lives that has occurred on the Delaware since the destruction of the steamboat Lexington.

The Mayor of New York recommends that application be made to Congress for a law relative to emigrants coming to the United States. In his communication to the Board of Aldermen, he states that it is the practice in Europe to send the poor and criminals to ship off paupers and criminals to this country in order to get rid of the expense of supporting them; and that those paupers generally bring to the United States the same habits and dispositions which rendered them a burthen to their own country, and become paupers or vagrants in this country. Amongst other instances of the communication stated that a vessel came back a set of public robbers were shipped off to this country, by the authorities of Hamburg.

LITERARY NOTICES.

MAJOR DOWNING'S LETTERS.

The letters of Major Jack Downing, addressed to Mr. Dwight, of the New York Daily Advertiser, have been collected and published in a volume of 250 pages, by Harpers, of New York. The book is ornamented with several engravings, illustrative of the Major's inimitable descriptions, and has for a frontispeece seven heads of the Downing family, the Hon. Samuel Downing, occupying a conspecuous position on the top. With the merits of the Major, as a scholar, a statesman, and a warm friend to the General, our readers are well acquainted, as we have furnished in our columns all the genuine samples of his genius, that we could lay hands on. To those who admire unsophisticated talent, and who have not the means of procuring a copy of the volume just published will prove a rich gratification. It may be obtained in this city of Mr. R. Perkins.

THE GENTLEMAN'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

A very entertaining and valuable work has lately been published in London, which, though small, it comprises in a brief, though satisfactory form, observations and advice for curing every disease to which men are subject; directions in case of accidents in every part of the body, and the symptoms of every dyspepsia, sick headache, their causes, cure and prevention, and a popular description of the human teeth and their diseases, with cure and treatment. The work is divided into parts and chapters convenient for reference, to the first of which is appended hints and recommendations for the traveller in health, and the invalid.

The object of the work appears to be to afford all classes of citizens a vade mecum; a medical adviser that may be carried with the person, and which will afford information in case of emergencies, and under all circumstances of accident or affliction, and if the advice of the author is as sound as his directions are full and satisfactory, it is most fully attained.

THE LADY'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

This is a work by the same author, and of a character somewhat similar to the above, is also evidently calculated to observations and advice applicable to the female sex. It notices the diseases peculiar to females and infants, and gives directions for their cure.

To the first of these works is prefixed a beautiful engraving of Dr. Benjamin Rush, and to the latter, a highly finished plate of a lady and gentleman on horseback.

Both works may be obtained of Messrs. James Kay, Jr. & Brother, 257 Market street.

THE STAFF OFFICER.

Messrs. Carey and Hart, of this city, have just published, in two volumes, a work entitled, "The Staff Officer, or the Soldier of Fortune—by Oliver Moore." It purports to be a tale of real life, and speaks with great fidelity of a number of distinguished men who flourished in Ireland at the date of the story. The work is well written, and contains a great variety of deeply interesting incidents, which will well repay the attention of the reader. Whether a book of fact or fiction, it is certainly one of the most entertaining lately issued from the press.

To Readers and Correspondents.

"Cross-grained Gentleman," is one of too political a character for the columns of this paper.

"Mark Bancroft" will perceive that we have given place to his communication, though we hope to have not be offended when we add that his dramatic essays are much above his poetical.

"The story of Mrs. Milford's Daughters" has a good moral, but little else to render it worthy of perusal.

Two of the articles furnished by "J. McC." will be inserted at our earliest convenience. We have no objection to writers whose articles were previously unknown.

"Scripture Anthology," by N. C. R. is an article that will do credit to the author, and on the talents of the author. It will meet attention.

"The Mysterious Lady" — "J. A." "On Conjugal Felicity;" and "To ——," will be received for perusal.

"List of the Contributors;" "Like a Fair Flower;" "Oh Earth, &c." — "My First Night's Courtship;" and the "Ghost Story," will appear.

RECEIPTS BY MAIL.

Feb. 28.—Received from		Received from
Robert Morrow, asst.	$2 50	Jno. Falconer, Esq	4 00
S. T. Goodwin,	50	Wm. Hamilton,	1 00
Wm. T. T. Jones,	10 00	W. W. Anderson,	2 50
T. Meily,	1 00	Nath. J. Palmer,	1 00
Danl. B. Washington,	2 00	H. Smith, Esq.	1 00
Edward Ashton,	5 00	A. E. Noble, Esq.	2 00
Jno. B. Smith, Esq.	1 00	"	1 00
W. Jenkins, Esq	6 00	George B. Orner,	5 00
Jno. Hall, Esq.	2 00	Nath. Hall, Esq.	3 00
Rich. Marsh, Esq.	3 00	Lewis Peck,	2 00
J. Yardley, Esq.	2 00	Jno. Peck,	2 00
T. Coleman, Esq.	2 00	Wm. W. Wenwag,	3 00
Thomas Wright, Esq	5 00	A. Bartlett, Esq.	10 00
Elijah Barnum, Esq	2 00	Jno. Collamore, Esq	2 00
How. Kennedy, Esq.	2 00	D. Pomroy, Esq.	3 00
"	2 00	Jno. Hall, Esq.	3 00
Wm. Homerton & Co. (per)	1 75	Oliver Bruhin, Esq	5 00
D. A. Lyman,	2 00	Jno. Cadwalader,	5 00
Chas. Lamb,	2 00	Allen W. Wootten,	2 00
T. Baldwin, Esq.	2 00	"	2 00
C. T. Sonde, Esq.	1 00	Merrel Hall,	1 00
Wade & Jones,	2 00	Ralph Jones, Esq.	1 00
"	2 00	J. Ayres, Esq.	1 00
		March 6.
Willard Parker,	3 00	J. B. Morrell,	10 00
E. P. Langdon,	274 62	Hiram V. Wanan,	2 00
E. W. Hatton,	2 00	G. M. Gardner,	5 00
Jno. Sparks, Jr.	5 00	Thomas J. Leslie,	2 00
S. Jeff. Vail,	4 00	Charles M. Hill,	2 00
John R. Nesbitt,	5 00	Solomon Peck,	2 00
H. Bond,	2 00	Aaron Mizell,	2 00
T. Dixon,	2 00	T. Carnes Burnet, Esq	2 00
Nath. B. Bingham,	2 00	Henry G. Benkes, esq	2 00
Sylv. Robinson, Esq	2 00	Chauncey Stone, Esq	2 00
Wm. Hall, Esq.	2 00	Rich. M. Ayres, Esq	2 00
Wm. Speer, Esq.	3 00	A. Custard, Esq.	1 00
Thos. G. Scott, Esq.	3 00	J. Ayres, Esq.	1 00

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We have now made out the accounts due from subscribers at the following places, and forwarded them to our agents for collection. We ask their future act as agents for us, at those places. Our subscribers are particularly requested to pay them the amount of their bills, with as little delay as possible.

Freeport Hill, Mississippi, Jos. Robeson, P. M.
New Berlin, Pennsylvania, M. Huber, P. M.
Perry, Pennsylvania, Samuel Perry, Esq. P. M.
Wilmington, Delaware, Wm. H. Naff.
Alexandria, District of Columbia, R. Ennemoser.
Fayetteville, North Carolina, James Robinson.
Port William, Kentucky, William Rose, P. M.
Greenville, Ohio, William Crosby, P. M.
Winchester, Virginia, Thomas Roberts, P. M.
Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, Mary Ann Smith.
Fort Wayne, Indiana, H. Rudisell, P. M.
East Hamburg, New York, Allen Potter, P. M.

From our Washington Correspondent.

Mr. Atkinson: Had I been told some twelve weeks ago when I first began to address you, that I should still have been legislating here till the first of March and upwards, I should not, as I have since come to, you would in all probability have thought me a madman, and yet here I am, unfortunately for the subject, and so far nothing decided, though hopes are entertained that we shall soon get through with it, for the majority of the House against the Bank diminishes gradually but surely; the prospect of having a majority of about 30 in favor of Mr. Avery's bill is now as ever, and our friends who have been anxiously waiting on Congress for relief, may as well put their own shoulders to the wheel and not cry to old Jupiter for help. Both parties are now in a state of unconcious with the existing scarcity, and be content with the prospect of making a living instead of nabbing up the thousands, as he has been for the last and better for his children.

Looking up the journal of our journal where I left off last week, I must begin with Wednesday, when was one of the panics, so successful in reaching a little girl named Sarah Jane Duff, who says her father, Alexander Duff, of Baltimore, is, he will no doubt hasten to recover his child.

The solo, The Wanderer, sung William Henry Pemberton Hodson, was also rescued: he says his father's name is Hugh Hodson, and that he resides in the boy is with the Rev. Mr. Clay, pastor of the Seventh Church, who resides near the church.

Mrs. Rodgers, wife of Mr. Rodgers—a female was also severely injured—the mail from Baltimore is mutilated, the first account accompanied with loss of lives that has occurred on the Delaware since the destruction of the steamboat Lexington.

The Mayor of New York recommends that application be made to Congress for a law relative to emigrants coming to the United States. In his communication to the Board of Aldermen, he states that it is the practice in Europe to send the poor and criminals to ship off paupers and criminals to this country in order to get rid of the expense of supporting them; and that those paupers generally bring to the United States the same habits and dispositions which rendered them a burthen to their own country, and become paupers or vagrants in this country. Amongst other instances of the communication stated that a vessel came back a set of public robbers were shipped off to this country, by the authorities of Hamburg.

LITERARY NOTICES.

MAJOR DOWNING'S LETTERS.

The letters of Major Jack Downing, addressed to Mr. Dwight, of the New York Daily Advertiser, have been collected and published in a volume of 250 pages, by Harpers, of New York. The book is ornamented with several engravings, illustrative of the Major's inimitable descriptions, and has for a frontispeece seven heads of the Downing family, the Hon. Samuel Downing, occupying a conspecuous position on the top. With the merits of the Major, as a scholar, a statesman, and a warm friend to the General, our readers are well acquainted, as we have furnished in our columns all the genuine samples of his genius, that we could lay hands on. To those who admire unsophisticated talent, and who have not the means of procuring a copy of the volume just published will prove a rich gratification. It may be obtained in this city of Mr. R. Perkins.

THE GENTLEMAN'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

A very entertaining and valuable work has lately been published in London, which, though small, it comprises in a brief, though satisfactory form, observations and advice for curing every disease to which men are subject; directions in case of accidents in every part of the body, and the symptoms of every dyspepsia, sick headache, their causes, cure and prevention, and a popular description of the human teeth and their diseases, with cure and treatment. The work is divided into parts and chapters convenient for reference, to the first of which is appended hints and recommendations for the traveller in health, and the invalid.

The object of the work appears to be to afford all classes of citizens a vade mecum; a medical adviser that may be carried with the person, and which will afford information in case of emergencies, and under all circumstances of accident or affliction, and if the advice of the author is as sound as his directions are full and satisfactory, it is most fully attained.

THE LADY'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

This is a work by the same author, and of a character somewhat similar to the above, is also evidently calculated to observations and advice applicable to the female sex. It notices the diseases peculiar to females and infants, and gives directions for their cure.

To the first of these works is prefixed a beautiful engraving of Dr. Benjamin Rush, and to the latter, a highly finished plate of a lady and gentleman on horseback.

Both works may be obtained of Messrs. James Kay, Jr. & Brother, 257 Market street.

THE STAFF OFFICER.

Messrs. Carey and Hart, of this city, have just published, in two volumes, a work entitled, "The Staff Officer, or the Soldier of Fortune—by Oliver Moore." It purports to be a tale of real life, and speaks with great fidelity of a number of distinguished men who flourished in Ireland at the date of the story. The work is well written, and contains a great variety of deeply interesting incidents, which will well repay the attention of the reader. Whether a book of fact or fiction, it is certainly one of the most entertaining lately issued from the press.

Burning of the Steam Boat William Penn.

LOSS OF LIFE.

We are called upon to record this week one of the most serious disasters that has ever occurred on the Delaware river—that of the destruction, by fire, of the Steam Boat William Penn, Capt. Coffin, of the Trail, Road Line to Baltimore, and the loss of several of the passengers, which took place on the afternoon of Tuesday last. The particulars we glean from the daily newspapers, and from conversations with several who were eye-witnesses of the distressing scene. The boat was on her way to the city from Newcastle, and had nearly reached the Point House, about three miles below this city, when the fire was discovered to be on fire, near the wheel house, on the windward side of the boat. The most strenuous exertions were immediately made by the captain, crew, and passengers to extinguish the flames, but the confusion of so large a number—about one hundred and fifty—rendered it impossible to form a line by which to pass the buckets from one to the other, and the wheel-house and the adjoining offices were in a few minutes enveloped in one sheet of flame. The fire must have originated in the boiler, from the circumstance that if it had been discovered in season, a few minutes more or it never could have obtained such fatal headway. As soon as it was thought impossible to save the boat, the passengers calling out some to run her ashore, which was accordingly done by the captain, and passengers, some jumped, and others were thrown or four feet deep; a rope was immediately thrown to them, with which they held the boat, until the crowd letting themselves down by it, compelled them to let go, and the boat drifted off into deep water, occasioning a delay which probably cost the lives of some. In a few minutes, however, the rope was manned by a dozen who had jumped out, and the boat drawn up again, when it was finally abandoned.

At this time the small boat was lowered into the water and filled with females and children, who were conveyed in safety to the shore. A lady, however, in the hurry with the Rev. John Mitchell Mason, of Lewistown, Del. in her fright jumped into the river, and was drowned. She was followed into the water by the Reverend gentleman, who also met a watery grave. Mr. Mason, a son of Dr. Mason of this city, also perished, and a gentleman named Walter W. Berkeley, of Hartford, Conn. died on the following morning, from exposure to the cold, having remained in the water a considerable length of time. The name of the lady who was drowned is not known. Her body was brought to this city, on the evening of the sad occurrence, by the Reverend Mr. Mason.

As soon as the fire was discovered, a number of small boats put off from the shore to assist the sufferers—also, the South street steamboat, one of the Market line, and the Kensington steamboat, from next street wharf. The passengers, for the most part, were brought up in these vessels. Thousands of our citizens, who had witnessed from the moment the fire was discovered, until long after nightfall. Great anxiety was felt by those who expected friends and relatives, and hundred of persons rushed to catch a glance at the boat as she passed. The fearful loss on one deer to them had passed into the valley of death.

The boat continued burning for several hours, and presented a beautiful but awful spectacle. About half past six o'clock she floated from the shore, and was seen drifting, burning, as far as the lights opposite the city, where she again went ashore, and was finally burnt down to the water's edge. What was the loss sustained will be about $70,000.

The Rev. Robert Murdock, 101 Loudon street, who was one of the passengers, succeeded in rescuing a little girl named Sarah Jane Duff, who says her father, Alexander Duff, of Baltimore, is, he will no doubt hasten to recover his child.

The solo, The Wanderer, sung William Henry Pemberton Hodson, was also rescued: he says his father's name is Hugh Hodson, and that he resides in the boy is with the Rev. Mr. Clay, pastor of the Seventh Church, who resides near the church.

Mrs. Rodgers, wife of Mr. Rodgers—a female was also severely injured—the mail from Baltimore is mutilated, the first account accompanied with loss of lives that has occurred on the Delaware since the destruction of the steamboat Lexington.

The Mayor of New York recommends that application be made to Congress for a law relative to emigrants coming to the United States. In his communication to the Board of Aldermen, he states that it is the practice in Europe to send the poor and criminals to ship off paupers and criminals to this country in order to get rid of the expense of supporting them; and that those paupers generally bring to the United States the same habits and dispositions which rendered them a burthen to their own country, and become paupers or vagrants in this country. Amongst other instances of the communication stated that a vessel came back a set of public robbers were shipped off to this country, by the authorities of Hamburg.

LITERARY NOTICES.

MAJOR DOWNING'S LETTERS.

The letters of Major Jack Downing, addressed to Mr. Dwight, of the New York Daily Advertiser, have been collected and published in a volume of 250 pages, by Harpers, of New York. The book is ornamented with several engravings, illustrative of the Major's inimitable descriptions, and has for a frontispeece seven heads of the Downing family, the Hon. Samuel Downing, occupying a conspecuous position on the top. With the merits of the Major, as a scholar, a statesman, and a warm friend to the General, our readers are well acquainted, as we have furnished in our columns all the genuine samples of his genius, that we could lay hands on. To those who admire unsophisticated talent, and who have not the means of procuring a copy of the volume just published will prove a rich gratification. It may be obtained in this city of Mr. R. Perkins.

THE GENTLEMAN'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

A very entertaining and valuable work has lately been published in London, which, though small, it comprises in a brief, though satisfactory form, observations and advice for curing every disease to which men are subject; directions in case of accidents in every part of the body, and the symptoms of every dyspepsia, sick headache, their causes, cure and prevention, and a popular description of the human teeth and their diseases, with cure and treatment. The work is divided into parts and chapters convenient for reference, to the first of which is appended hints and recommendations for the traveller in health, and the invalid.

The object of the work appears to be to afford all classes of citizens a vade mecum; a medical adviser that may be carried with the person, and which will afford information in case of emergencies, and under all circumstances of accident or affliction, and if the advice of the author is as sound as his directions are full and satisfactory, it is most fully attained.

THE LADY'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

This is a work by the same author, and of a character somewhat similar to the above, is also evidently calculated to observations and advice applicable to the female sex. It notices the diseases peculiar to females and infants, and gives directions for their cure.

To the first of these works is prefixed a beautiful engraving of Dr. Benjamin Rush, and to the latter, a highly finished plate of a lady and gentleman on horseback.

Both works may be obtained of Messrs. James Kay, Jr. & Brother, 257 Market street.

THE STAFF OFFICER.

Messrs. Carey and Hart, of this city, have just published, in two volumes, a work entitled, "The Staff Officer, or the Soldier of Fortune—by Oliver Moore." It purports to be a tale of real life, and speaks with great fidelity of a number of distinguished men who flourished in Ireland at the date of the story. The work is well written, and contains a great variety of deeply interesting incidents, which will well repay the attention of the reader. Whether a book of fact or fiction, it is certainly one of the most entertaining lately issued from the press.

Burning of the Steam Boat William Penn.

LOSS OF LIFE.

We are called upon to record this week one of the most serious disasters that has ever occurred on the Delaware river—that of the destruction, by fire, of the Steam Boat William Penn, Capt. Coffin, of the Trail, Road Line to Baltimore, and the loss of several of the passengers, which took place on the afternoon of Tuesday last. The particulars we glean from the daily newspapers, and from conversations with several who were eye-witnesses of the distressing scene. The boat was on her way to the city from Newcastle, and had nearly reached the Point House, about three miles below this city, when the fire was discovered to be on fire, near the wheel house, on the windward side of the boat. The most strenuous exertions were immediately made by the captain, crew, and passengers to extinguish the flames, but the confusion of so large a number—about one hundred and fifty—rendered it impossible to form a line by which to pass the buckets from one to the other, and the wheel-house and the adjoining offices were in a few minutes enveloped in one sheet of flame. The fire must have originated in the boiler, from the circumstance that if it had been discovered in season, a few minutes more or it never could have obtained such fatal headway. As soon as it was thought impossible to save the boat, the passengers calling out some to run her ashore, which was accordingly done by the captain, and passengers, some jumped, and others were thrown or four feet deep; a rope was immediately thrown to them, with which they held the boat, until the crowd letting themselves down by it, compelled them to let go, and the boat drifted off into deep water, occasioning a delay which probably cost the lives of some. In a few minutes, however, the rope was manned by a dozen who had jumped out, and the boat drawn up again, when it was finally abandoned.

At this time the small boat was lowered into the water and filled with females and children, who were conveyed in safety to the shore. A lady, however, in the hurry with the Rev. John Mitchell Mason, of Lewistown, Del. in her fright jumped into the river, and was drowned. She was followed into the water by the Reverend gentleman, who also met a watery grave. Mr. Mason, a son of Dr. Mason of this city, also perished, and a gentleman named Walter W. Berkeley, of Hartford, Conn. died on the following morning, from exposure to the cold, having remained in the water a considerable length of time. The name of the lady who was drowned is not known. Her body was brought to this city, on the evening of the sad occurrence, by the Reverend Mr. Mason.

As soon as the fire was discovered, a number of small boats put off from the shore to assist the sufferers—also, the South street steamboat, one of the Market line, and the Kensington steamboat, from next street wharf. The passengers, for the most part, were brought up in these vessels. Thousands of our citizens, who had witnessed from the moment the fire was discovered, until long after nightfall. Great anxiety was felt by those who expected friends and relatives, and hundred of persons rushed to catch a glance at the boat as she passed. The fearful loss on one deer to them had passed into the valley of death.

The boat continued burning for several hours, and presented a beautiful but awful spectacle. About half past six o'clock she floated from the shore, and was seen drifting, burning, as far as the lights opposite the city, where she again went ashore, and was finally burnt down to the water's edge. What was the loss sustained will be about $70,000.

The Rev. Robert Murdock, 101 Loudon street, who was one of the passengers, succeeded in rescuing a little girl named Sarah Jane Duff, who says her father, Alexander Duff, of Baltimore, is, he will no doubt hasten to recover his child.

The solo, The Wanderer, sung William Henry Pemberton Hodson, was also rescued: he says his father's name is Hugh Hodson, and that he resides in the boy is with the Rev. Mr. Clay, pastor of the Seventh Church, who resides near the church.

Mrs. Rodgers, wife of Mr. Rodgers—a female was also severely injured—the mail from Baltimore is mutilated, the first account accompanied with loss of lives that has occurred on the Delaware since the destruction of the steamboat Lexington.

The Mayor of New York recommends that application be made to Congress for a law relative to emigrants coming to the United States. In his communication to the Board of Aldermen, he states that it is the practice in Europe to send the poor and criminals to ship off paupers and criminals to this country in order to get rid of the expense of supporting them; and that those paupers generally bring to the United States the same habits and dispositions which rendered them a burthen to their own country, and become paupers or vagrants in this country. Amongst other instances of the communication stated that a vessel came back a set of public robbers were shipped off to this country, by the authorities of Hamburg.

LITERARY NOTICES.

MAJOR DOWNING'S LETTERS.

The letters of Major Jack Downing, addressed to Mr. Dwight, of the New York Daily Advertiser, have been collected and published in a volume of 250 pages, by Harpers, of New York. The book is ornamented with several engravings, illustrative of the Major's inimitable descriptions, and has for a frontispeece seven heads of the Downing family, the Hon. Samuel Downing, occupying a conspecuous position on the top. With the merits of the Major, as a scholar, a statesman, and a warm friend to the General, our readers are well acquainted, as we have furnished in our columns all the genuine samples of his genius, that we could lay hands on. To those who admire unsophisticated talent, and who have not the means of procuring a copy of the volume just published will prove a rich gratification. It may be obtained in this city of Mr. R. Perkins.

THE GENTLEMAN'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

A very entertaining and valuable work has lately been published in London, which, though small, it comprises in a brief, though satisfactory form, observations and advice for curing every disease to which men are subject; directions in case of accidents in every part of the body, and the symptoms of every dyspepsia, sick headache, their causes, cure and prevention, and a popular description of the human teeth and their diseases, with cure and treatment. The work is divided into parts and chapters convenient for reference, to the first of which is appended hints and recommendations for the traveller in health, and the invalid.

The object of the work appears to be to afford all classes of citizens a vade mecum; a medical adviser that may be carried with the person, and which will afford information in case of emergencies, and under all circumstances of accident or affliction, and if the advice of the author is as sound as his directions are full and satisfactory, it is most fully attained.

THE LADY'S MEDICAL POCKET BOOK.

This is a work by the same author, and of a character somewhat similar to the above, is also evidently calculated to observations and advice applicable to the female sex. It notices the diseases peculiar to females and infants, and gives directions for their cure.

To the first of these works is prefixed a beautiful engraving of Dr. Benjamin Rush, and to the latter, a highly finished plate of a lady and gentleman on horseback.

Both works may be obtained of Messrs. James Kay, Jr. & Brother, 257 Market street.

THE STAFF OFFICER.

Messrs. Carey and Hart, of this city, have just published, in two volumes, a work entitled, "The Staff Officer, or the Soldier of Fortune—by Oliver Moore." It purports to be a tale of real life, and speaks with great fidelity of a number of distinguished men who flourished in Ireland at the date of the story. The work is well written, and contains a great variety of deeply interesting incidents, which will well repay the attention of the reader. Whether a book of fact or fiction, it is certainly one of the most entertaining lately issued from the press.

To Readers and Correspondents.

"Cross-grained Gentleman," is one of too political a character for the columns of this paper.

"Mark Bancroft" will perceive that we have given place to his communication, though we hope to have not be offended when we add that his dramatic essays are much above his poetical.

"The story of Mrs. Milford's Daughters" has a good moral, but little else to render it worthy of perusal.

Two of the articles furnished by "J. McC." will be inserted at our earliest convenience. We have no objection to writers whose articles were previously unknown.

"Scripture Anthology," by N. C. R. is an article that will do credit to the author, and on the talents of the author. It will meet attention.

"The Mysterious Lady" — "J. A." "On Conjugal Felicity;" and "To ——," will be received for perusal.

"List of the Contributors;" "Like a Fair Flower;" "Oh Earth, &c." — "My First Night's Courtship;" and the "Ghost Story," will appear.

RECEIPTS BY MAIL.

Feb. 28.—Received from		Received from
Robert Morrow, asst.	$2 50	Jno. Falconer, Esq	4 00
S. T. Goodwin,	50	Wm. Hamilton,	1 00
Wm. T. T. Jones,	10 00	W. W. Anderson,	2 50
T. Meily,	1 00	Nath. J. Palmer,	1 00
Danl. B. Washington,	2 00	H. Smith, Esq.	1 00
Edward Ashton,	5 00	A. E. Noble, Esq.	2 00
Jno. B. Smith, Esq.	1 00	"	1 00
W. Jenkins, Esq	6 00	George B. Orner,	5 00
Jno. Hall, Esq.	2 00	Nath. Hall, Esq.	3 00
Rich. Marsh, Esq.	3 00	Lewis Peck,	2 00
J. Yardley, Esq.	2 00	Jno. Peck,	2 00
T. Coleman, Esq.	2 00	Wm. W. Wenwag,	3 00
Thomas Wright, Esq	5 00	A. Bartlett, Esq.	10 00
Elijah Barnum, Esq	2 00	Jno. Collamore, Esq	2 00
How. Kennedy, Esq.	2 00	D. Pomroy, Esq.	3 00
"	2 00	Jno. Hall, Esq.	3 00
Wm. Homerton & Co. (per)	1 75	Oliver Bruhin, Esq	5 00
D. A. Lyman,	2 00	Jno. Cadwalader,	5 00
Chas. Lamb,	2 00	Allen W. Wootten,	2 00
T. Baldwin, Esq.	2 00	"	2 00
C. T. Sonde, Esq.	1 00	Merrel Hall,	1 00
Wade & Jones,	2 00	Ralph Jones, Esq.	1 00
"	2 00	J. Ayres, Esq.	1 00
		March 6.
Willard Parker,	3 00	J. B. Morrell,	10 00
E. P. Langdon,	274 62	Hiram V. Wanan,	2 00
E. W. Hatton,	2 00	G. M. Gardner,	5 00
Jno. Sparks, Jr.	5 00	Thomas J. Leslie,	2 00
S. Jeff. Vail,	4 00	Charles M. Hill,	2 00
John R. Nesbitt,	5 00	Solomon Peck,	2 00
H. Bond,	2 00	Aaron Mizell,	2 00
T. Dixon,	2 00	T. Carnes Burnet, Esq	2 00
Nath. B. Bingham,	2 00	Henry G. Benkes, esq	2 00
Sylv. Robinson, Esq	2 00	Ch

Terms of this Paper.

Single subscribers, $3 00 per annum.

Clubs of ten, $25 00 per annum.

Clubs of twenty, and upwards, $2 50 each.

Postage, 26 cents additional, to all the Provinces.

Monthly Parts, Monthly Numbers, or Semi-Monthly Numbers, can be had of the PUBLISHERS' AGENTS, in all the principal towns.

ADVICE TO LADIES.

In getting up a garden, the first thing to be done is to secure the fence, and the second is making a walk which may run around the garden. Then, if you have a little boy, before we had a little Dorry, you may have a little boy, before we had a little Dorry, you may have a little boy, before we had a little Dorry, you may